SCOTT'S EMULSION

of cod-liver oil is the means of life, and enjoyment of life to thousands: men women and children.

When appetite fails, it restores it. When food is a burden, it lifts the burden.

When you lose flesh, it brings the plumpness of health.

When work is hard and duty is heavy, it makes life bright.

It is the thin edge of the wedge; the thick end is food. But what is the use of food, when you hate it, and can't digest it?

Scott's Emulsion of cod-liver oil is the food that makes you forget your stomach.

If you have not tried it, send for free sample. Agreeable taste will surprise you.

HAWAIIAN GAZETTE COMPANY.

WANT ALL THE WATER

Hawaiian Commercial Sues Wailuku Co.

CLAIMS STREAM IS DIVERTED

Plaintiff is owner of Ahupuaa and as Such Says Company Has Only Right.

H. P. Baldwin, for the Hawaiian Commercial & Sugar Company, yesterday filed suit in the First Circuit Court against the Wailuku Sugar Company, praying that a permanent injunction against the company be granted, restraining it from diverting any of the water of Wailuku stream. The bill of the plaintiff shows:

That the plaintiff is the owner in fee simple of the Ahupuaa of Wailuku, together with Konohiki rights therein, and all other rights, privileges and appurtenances, and of all the water flowing in the streams and ditches thereon, including the Wailuku stream, over and above such portion thereof as the kalo lands of the Kuleanas in said Ahupuaa are entitled to by prescriptive right. And the defendant is the owner of certain Kuleanas and grants with the Ahupuaa.

That a large area, 125 acres and more, of the Ahupuaa belonging to plaintiff, situate in the lower part of the valley of the Wailuku stream, consists of ancient kalo lands which are entitled to receive as an appurtenance a continuous and uninterrupted flow of water from said Wailuku stream.

The plaintiff alleges that the defendant has unlawfully constructed a large dam in said stream at a place called Maniania, and now unlawfully maintains the same there and uses the water flowing in a pipe and ditch from the said dam to irrigate large tracts of kula land not entitled to water for irrigation and situate about a mile or more distant therefrom. During three months last past the plaintiff alleges the defendant has by means of this dam unlawfully diverted and is now lawfully diverting from the stream large quantities of water to which the Ahupuaa was and is entitled as an appurtenance.

It is further alleged that the defendant has unlawfully tapped the Kalanialauan, an ancient water ditch in said Ahupuaa, by means of a flume, and has thereby unlawfully diverted and still unlawfully diverts large quantities of water from the ditch and therewith irrigates kula lands of the defendant which are not entitled to water. The plaintiff says the defendant company is diverting large quantities of the Wailuku stream water into reservoirs. The plaintiff requires for use, for irrigation purposes of its own, all of the water so illegally diverted by the defendant as aforesaid, and that unless restrained therefrom by an injunction to issue out of the First Circuit Court, the said diversion of water will work manifest wrong and injury to the plaintiff, whereby the company will suffer irreparable damage.

AS OTHERS SEE IT.

Effect of This Legislature on Public Sentiment in America.

This Legislature has done much to form American opinion about the capacity of the Hawaiians for self-government, as is shown in the following article from the Outlook:

The results of even quasi-independence coupled with universal suffrage in a community for whose well-being the United States is responsible, as they are shown in Hawaii, are not such as to commend this method to those who judge political principles by their actual results in practical operation. The Hawaiian Legislature elected under American sovereignty is largely composed of men who bitterly opposed the union of Hawaii with the United States, and who have elected as a delegate to the United States one who has been persistently opposed, and apparently still is opposed, not only to its sovereignty, but to any organic relationship between the United States and Hawaii. Some of the members of the Legislature are, or have been, avowed advocates of the reinstating of Queen Liliuokalani. Some of the legislators do not speak English. The federal law requiring the proceedings of the Legislature to be transacted in English has been, so far as they are concerned, ignored, and the presence of a representative of the federal government, whose office it was to report the proceedings of the Legislature to the President, has been resented, and he has been turned out of the House by the sergeant at arms. According to a correspondent of the New York Evening Post, the Legislature is ready to put straightway upon trial a number of radical experiments which in most countries have not yet passed the stage of public discussion, such as the single tax, proportional representation, and the government liquor dispensary system. It is also said to be preparing to vote an award of $250,000 to the Queen, for what reasons other than those of sentiment we do not know. It is too early yet to predict with confidence what the results will be in Hawaii, but the present indications are at least a temporary rule of ignorance, incompetence, and corruption under the leadership of demagogues, which, although it may initiate some useful experiments, will probably rival, if it does not eclipse, the temporary carpet-bag rule in the Southern States. We hope that these apprehensions, apparently entertained by the well-informed, may be proved by events to be at least not wholly justified; but they should be sufficient to put us on guard in dealing with other dependencies for whose government we are responsible.

The Coming Tom.

SALT LAKE, April 5.—Tom Fitch is now busily engaged in preparing for his departure from Zion, which will take place next week. Mr. Fitch will go from here to the coast, and on April 17th will sail from San Francisco for Hawaii, where he will remain for some time. He has become very much attached to a portion of the furniture in his Brigham street home, and will take a carload to Honolulu with him. The furniture is now being packed for shipment. Mr. Fitch's residence will be either rented or sold, as he does not expect to return to the city for at least two years.

The Missing Witness Found.

The schooner Rosamond, Captain Ward, arrived yesterday morning, after a passage of eighteen days from Honolulu, with a cargo of sugar and seven passengers. Among them were Frederick O'Brien, late city editor of the Honolulu Advertiser; Mrs. O'Brien and Mortimer I. Stevens, also a newspaper man. Captain Ward reports that on March 29th, in latitude 35 degrees north, and longitude 155 degrees west, or about 1,800 miles west of San Francisco, he sighted a four-masted iron ship, the name of which could not be made out. The Rosamond was about two miles away. The ship was apparently in ballast, and the fore, main, and mizzen topmasts and everything attached had been carried away. One yard each on the fore and mizzen masts, and two yards on the mainmast, were all that remained, and one piece of canvas, which looked like a royal, was rigged on the stump of the mainmast. The ship made no response to signals of the Rosamond, but was apparently well manned and steering a northeasterly course under a good breeze. At the Merchants' Exchange yesterday no attempt to identify the unknown and dismantled ship was ventured.—Chronicle, April 8.

SOOTHED BY THE SENATE

That Body Takes the Desk Responsibility Off Cayple's Shoulders.

Secretary Cayple induced a good-natured Senate to vindicate him yesterday by taking the responsibility upon its own shoulders of sending public furniture to private houses, when room might easily have been found for its storage and use in public buildings. Cayple was greatly exercised over the publicity given the occurrence, but the Senate soothed him by signing the following papers, which he had prepared:

Honolulu, T. H., April 15, 1901.

The typewriter provided for the Secretary of the Senate has been and is being used by him at his residence with the full knowledge and consent of the accounts committee of the Senate.

There is nothing in the use or possession of this typewriter, desk, etc., by Mr. Cayple, but what has been and is perfectly proper, open and above-board, and any statements or insinuations to the contrary are unjust to Mr. Cayple.

D. KANUHA,
J. D. PARIS,
J. T. BROWN,
Senate Committee on Accounts.

Honolulu, T. H., April 15, 1901.

The statements in the Pacific Commercial Advertiser of this date are unfair and unjust in the insinuated reflections therein cast upon Mr. Cayple, secretary of the Senate.

It has been known to the Senate at all times that the typewriting of the journal and other documents, under Mr. Cayple's supervision, was being done at his residence, there being no proper place at the Senate chamber. A statement of that fact was made by Mr. Cayple to the Senate in open session in the early days of the session.
